

Crude Oil

Crude inventories rose by 1.95 million barrels this week. A 1.0% increase in production and a 1.6% decline in crude flowing to refineries offset a 9.4% decline in imports. The 1.95 million barrel gain was 15% larger than the expected increase of 1.7 million and in sharp contrast to the 5-year average decline of 239,000 barrels for the time period. Inventories have improved to 9.4% above last year and 14.0% above the 5-year average. Inventories are at their highest level ever for this date.

A new U.S. stimulus package, larger than expected declines in finished product inventories, and a weaker dollar pushed crude oil prices to their highest levels since May. Spot prices and futures prices rose by $2.50 for the week. The spot price settled at $84.43, $4.88 (6.1%) higher than a year ago. Futures prices were at $87.00, $4.45 (5.4%) higher than last year. Both prices are about 42% below their 2008 peak prices.

Natural Gas

Inventories grew this week by 67 BCF, the fourth consecutive week of record high growth. The 67 BCF was 5% above the expected gain and 2 1/2 times the 5-year average gain of only 27 BCF. Over the past 33 weeks inventories have grown by 2,206 BCF, 14.5% higher than the normal gain of 1,927 BCF. At 3,821 BCF, this week's inventory level is at a record high for this date. It is 10.2% above the 5-year average and is 1.0% higher than last year.

Futures prices settled at $4.177 per million BTU yesterday. They were up 15.3 cents for the week but down $1.292 (23.6%) from a year ago. They had fallen by $1.016 over the previous 12 weeks and they are at their lowest levels in eight years. At $3.350 per million BTU, spot prices were down 3.0 cents for the week and 22.4% lower than a year ago. Spot prices have fallen by $1.43 over the past 13 weeks. They are at their lowest levels in almost a year.

Heating oil

Distillate stocks fell by 3.6 million barrels this week, more than three times the anticipated decline of 1.0 million and over 10 times the 5-year average decline of 0.3 million. Stocks are 1.5% below last year and are the 2nd highest ever for this date, 19.2% above the five-year average.

Futures prices and spot prices have been following crude. They rose by over 8 cents this week after falling by more than 6 cents over the previous 3 weeks. Futures prices settled at $2.376/gal, 19.3 cents (8.9%) above last year but $1.819 (43.4%) below 2008's peak. Spot prices were at $2.307/gal, 28.0 cents (13.8%) above last year but $1.773 (43.5%) below the 2008 peak. Retail prices are now at $2.929/gal, 19.3 cents (8.9%) above a year ago but $1.838 (38.6%) below their 2008 peak. The highest price in this week's survey was $3.499 and the lowest was $2.590. According to census data, 49.1% of dwelling units in Connecticut heat with oil.
